A Great Bar Year Ahead!

By Candace Crowley

This issue of Connections marks the first communication to new leaders of the 133 affinity bar associations and the 39 State Bar sections working to improve the administration of justice in Michigan during the 2008-2009 Bar leadership year. Welcome aboard, new leaders, and a warm hello to those of you who remain at the head of your organization!

Connections is meant to improve communications among all of us so we can learn from each other, use our resources most effectively, ask for help from each other, and find allies to enlist in common goals. The pictures are meant to help us visualize your activities and stimulate thinking as to whether a featured event is something your audience is ready for. "Out and About" showcases your programs and introduces your leaders—we are always looking for information, so send us ideas to include in upcoming issues.

One of the most important messages from the State Bar is that we are here to support your work and to help you succeed. We can assist you in finding partners, developing materials, or strategizing policy work. Our presidents are always open to supporting your events, and this year is no exception. Ed Pappas is a friendly but competitive person and is eager to attend more events than any of his predecessors. Please invite him to join you at a meeting, discussion, or celebration. I can help you with his calendar, so give me a shout. Most of all, let me know how the State Bar can help you with your work this year.

Genesee Bar Association Promotes Professionalism

The Genesee Bar adopted Standards for Professional Conduct within Michigan's Seventh Judicial Circuit in 1993, and it continues to encourage members to adhere to the standards to improve the climate of the practice of law in Genesee County. The standards are distributed to every attorney in the area and to all of the courts within the county. Members are encouraged to adhere to the principles so that clients will be better served and the profession will gain greater respect. Past President Kurtis Brown encouraged members "to refer to this code whenever you feel that an opposing counsel has violated it or whenever you feel a member of the bench should direct parties to abide by the spirit intended by the standards of conduct."

Revised You and the Law Booklet Now Available

The Michigan Lawyers Auxiliary and the Public Outreach Committee of the State Bar announce the availability of an updated You and the Law booklet for young people in Michigan. Janet Welch’s foreword explains that “The State Bar of Michigan offers this booklet to help you be aware of your rights and responsibilities under the law and to be a responsible citizen of Michigan and the United States. It is specially designed to tell you about areas of the law that are of special concern to young people.” The book costs $2.00.

Affinity Bar Directory Available Soon

The 2008-2009 directory should be posted online and mailed to you before the end of November. It was especially difficult getting updated information from bars this year; we appreciate your patience while we track everyone down. Note for the future: please provide updated officer information upon our first request to you!

Looking for Interested Attorneys to Participate in Disabilities Access Issues

The Justice Initiatives Committee and its disabilities work group are looking for attorneys who are willing to participate in a survey to determine the accessibility of courts for persons with disabilities. A note to this effect was sent to section leaders earlier this year, but the work group is still looking for two populations: (1) attorneys who have represented clients with disabilities and (2) attorneys who would voluntarily identify themselves as people with a disability that requires accommodation. Those who are identified should be willing to participate in a survey to identify barriers/challenges/issues.

If you or your members can help identify attorneys within these populations, the disabilities work group would be very appreciative. Please contact Katy Conklin, kconklin@mail.michbar.org.

communities, and this campaign will help us publicize the good deeds and services performed by these lawyers—not only as members of the Bar, but also as members of their own communities. Bar associations, sections, law firms, legal aid organizations, law schools, and individual Michigan attorneys will all be encouraged to participate. T-shirts, buttons, golf shirts, hats, and aprons will carry the distinctive "A Lawyer Helps" logo.

State Bar staff continues to meet with potential partner groups to identify the best way to move forward with the campaign. A Law Day launch is anticipated.
